She has to wait on us to translate any instruction manuals or product descriptions to Hindi for her. I taught her how to use this app on her phone and she's elated! She just scans and reads the Hindi translation and sometimes listens to it if her eyes strain due to reading on screen. I'm so happy with the convenience this app brought for her.I did notice that there are slight errors and omits when doing the instant translation sometimes and those could be improved but it's still very useful as is. It needs to be better. It gets really hard to translate something to English from a foreign language because it never gets the exact language I want which usually results in wrong translations and when I'm on my laptop or my iPad, where I don't have the Gboard option to change the language of my keyboard. In fact, even when I'm my Gboard, I don't get the correct translations sometimes. But other than that, it is pretty good even though I'm not exactly completely happy with it. I also suggest that you put the option for which context the word was used in for more accurate results and also put the meaning of the translated word in simpler words for people to understand because sometimes the translated words are kind of complex and I am not able to understand them. And also, when you're translating from one foreign language to another which I should know since I'm I myself come from another country, it gets really difficult to translate, so I suggest you work on that too... Thankyou Hey, I just want to recommend that, you just have to add multiple translation tab below the result of chooes language . so that it will be helpful to find translation from one language to multiple languages of same word moreover it will definitely reduce the time for multiple language learners and to understand a word in a better way for instance, I want to translate a word into Urdu and English, so here I have to search for two times one by one if it will have the option to select multiple languages before the result and show two tabs instead of one (English and urdu) so it would less time taking.
